SOUTHERN FIRST BANK

Lindsey Architecture led the design team for Southern First Bank's downtown Greensboro location. Topping out at 75,000 square feet on two acres, the branch occupies a large footprint on the first floor in what was formerly the First Citizens Bank building.

The primary goal of the design centered around maintaining the customer experience Southern First Bank's customers are accustomed to at every other location. The Greensboro location welcomes consumers with abundant natural light, fireplace, mini cafe, non-teller like service experiences, and comfortable waiting areas where consumers can sit, relax, and watch television while awaiting one-on-one, personal service with a financial expert.
